New Telegraph Movements.

The House Washington Telegraph line and the Magnetic Telegraph Company have both advertised a reduction of their rates, but this change applies only to newspapers, and has not been extended to the general public rates on both these lines, from New York to Washington are the same, the prices having been brought down about ve mouths ago by the establishment of the Hughes line between this city and Philadelphia, and the subsequent coonection between that line and the House line, which extended from Philadelphia to Washington. In the course of a month it is expected the Highes line will be opened all the way to Washington, but in the meantime the rangement which has been made with the House Com pany accomplishes the same purpose as if it were a contin-

The old rates were as follows:-S0 conts for the first twenty words, and 4 cents for each additional word, up to 1,000; and after that a reduction of one-half or 23 cents a word. The rates at present are 50 cents for ten words, and 5 cents for every additional word up to 100; after that a deduction of one-third up to 500 words, and of 2% cents per word from 500 to 1,000, while all over a usand is charged at a reduction of two-thirds on the first price. The Hughes line, when opened for the first time to Philadelphia, brought down the prices from forty to twenty-five cents per message of ten words.

While on this subject we may state that the successful laying of the cable has infused new life into the telegraphi operations in California. Additional stock was taken in the Placerville, Humboldt and Salt Lake Telegraph Comway, and the projectors of the line were pushing their way eastward over the Sierra Nevada mountains, and the people are impatient for its completion, that they may ex-change business messages between New York and San cisco and liear from loved friends and kindred. Mr. A. W. Bee, of San Francisco, is now attending to the pur-chase of material, &c., for the company. The importance of this work comes next to that of laying the cable across the Atlantic. Our government would be benefitted by millions in time of war. With steam from San Francisco to Hong Kong, the East Indies would be but about twenty days from New York. There seems to be but one opinion in regard to the necessity for a telegraph communication across the continent, and government should lend aid in money and military protection. There is already three hundred miles of wire stretched from San Francisco eas erly to the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and another bundred miles will be completed before the rainy season sets in. The balance of the way to Salt Lake-about five hundred miles-will be constructed mostly of insulated gutta percha and lead wire, which will be sunk in the ground about twelve inches. The citizens of El Dorado and Sacramento coun ties have constructed a good road over the Sierras, and a line of stages are now running daily between Sacramento

Placerville and Carson Valley.

Dr. Charpenning, who has the mail contract from Cal forms to Salt Lake, is making regular trips, and meets with but little trouble from the Indians. The country through which he passes is well watered, and he find plenty of grass. With imperfect arrangements, the mails are carried through from St. Louis to Placerville in time not varying much from the Butterfield schedule, where such great efforts have been made.

Almost every year since 1848, spring carriages convey ing families have passed over this route to California in good condition. At least 100,000 emigrants have traversed the plains over this route, a large portion of them women and children, and but few have lost their lives by the Ir dians previous to the Mormon war. The distance from St. Joseph. Mo., to Placerville, is less than two thousand miles, and can be travelled nearly every month in the year by mail conveyances. Senator Broderick is now on his way to the Atlantic States by way of Great Salt Lake City, and will no doubt give his views in regard to it as a mail and telegraph route.

The suggestions of Mr. H. O'Reilly to Congress are the most practical of any yet offered for a mail, emigrant and telegraph line: to have United States dragoons employed in building stockades at distances of twenty miles each from Missouri to the nearest settlements of California, each stockade to contain accommodations for twenty men and their horses. A patrol from each would meet one from that on either side daily, receiving and delivering a letter mail-so that each post would daily give the hand to that on either side of it.

When these lines are completed we shall have new from California once a week—a result which will be brought about by the combined aid of mules and magnetism, express enterprise and electricity.

Banquet of the Venezuelan Commissioners to the Authorities and Citizens of Philadelphia.

[From the United States Gazette, Nov. 5.]
One of the most recherche and agreeable entertainments of recent date took place last evening at the Girard House, being given by the Venezuelan Commissioners, as an acknowledgment of the hospitalities extended to General Pacz in the year 1850, on his being driven into exile from his own country. Some forty gentlemen sat down to the table, including, besides the Commissioners and General Pacz, General Robert Patterson, Judges Cadwalader, Sharswood and Lewis, Colonel J. Ross Snowden, Director of the Mint; Mayor Alexander Henry, Mayor Scierk, James of the Mini, Mayor Alexander Henry, Mayor's Clerk, James R. Monigonery, Morton McKlichael, Jesper Harding, and many gentlemen connected with the Rags of the United States, Venezuela, Peru, and other American republics, and the table was set in a style which reflects credit on the worthy hosts of the Girard House, while the visuads and winos were also very superior.

Seoor Rojas, the faithful friend of General Paez, officiated as master of the ceremonies on the occasion, and presided at the table with dignity and grace. During his exile in our country Seonr Rojas has become familiar with the English language, as well as with our maaners and customs, and he therefore did the honors of the table becomingly. Many of the ladies and gentlemen stopping at the botes were gratified by an opportunity of hearing the loads and speeches.

On the removal of the cloth, Schor Rojas rose and proposed the regular tosats, the first of which, to the Precident of the United States, was handesmely bonored. The hand played "Hall Columbia." The second tosat will be applicated the cloth of the cloth application, the cloth of the cloth application, the cloth of the cloth application, the cloth of the reception given to General Paez, in 1850, by the authorities and citterns of Philadelphia, is a splendid proof of the greatness of your people. Operatic and Dramatic Matters.

come storm of last week, while it injured the numers of the theatres, did not seem to affect the Opera materially. On Monday and Wednesday evenings somewhat well worn "Trovatore," with Piccolomini, was given to houses which paid nearly three thousand dollars for each night. On Thursday the operatic forces crossed the river and gave a concert at Brooklyn, which drew a full house. On Friday, when Mme. Gazzaniga received a grand ovation, the and once was equal to that of Monday; and on Saturday, for the maticie, the area of crimoine in the Academy most have been almost equal to that of the new lake in the Central Park. The public here is the most lineral in the world when there is anything worth while being liberal for, and the most indifferent when not suited. Just now Mr. Uliman and his artists are at the top of the tide-indeed, the democstration of Saturday was more like a freshet of popularity than anything oise. It is not wonderful either, for under the present administration th Opera House has been made equally attractive to the theatre-goer and the musical connoisseur. With the spiendid mise en scene, gay costumes, and marked histrionic talent of nearly all the artists, people who do not care for the music are especially delighted, while the strong force at Mr. Ullman's disposal enables him to illustrate property every school of music.

The programme for this evening is the first performance this season of "Don Giovanni." Last year, when it was given here, the performance was an admirable one, though not altogether perfect. It appears to us that the cast for to-night is much stronger. The Zerlina of M'lle Piccolimini received in London praises that had been withheld from her in other rôles, and a far greater triumph is predicted for her to night than any she has yet achieved. Mme. Gazzaniga sings Donna Anna, and the new prima donna, Ghioni, Elvira. Formes, who made a great sensation in Leperello last season, and Gassier, who is an excellent Don, make up the distribution principal rôles. The others are in the hands of good artists, and a perfect ensemble may confidently be expected. Mr. Auschutz will conduct the orchestra and the pupils of the Academy Singing School will sing for the first time in the chorus. The appearance of this chorus is the beginning of a reform which has been steadily urged in these columns ever since the Opera House was built; and it was the manager, not the directors, who made the first movement towards complying with the provisions of the charter.

There will be in the "Don Giovanni," then, first rate artists, good orchestra and chorus, incidental ballet, with Soto as principal dancer, and splendid mise en scene, with, we may add in passing, a grand audience to assist at a grand performance.

At the theatres the week has not been fruitful in novelty. Burton's remains closed, and it seems probable that it will not be opened for regular dramatic performances at present. The comedy of "Wheat and Chaff" has been withdrawn from Wallack's and replaced by a selection of clever pieces, among which is a new farce by Mr. Hoppin, an artist of note. It is called "the Lady of the Bed chamber," and the plot turns upon the hoaxing of an aristocratic specimen of young New York by means of an Irish servant girl, attired as a lady of quality, lately imported. The principal characters are admirably played by Miss Gannon and Mr. Sloan, and the piece has been entirely successful. Mr. O'Brien's capital comedy, "A Gentleman from Ireland," has also been revived, with Mr. Brougham and Mrs. Hoey in their original parts. This piece is announced for to-night, with the "Lady of the Bedchamber" and Mr. Brougham's bur lesque, " Neptune's Defeat."

At Niblo's Garden the popular drama "The Phant and the burietta, "The Young Actress," with Mr. Bourci cault and Miss Robertson, will be repeated this evening On to morrow, Mr. Bourcleault's benefit will take place and on Wednesday there will be an afternoon perfe of "Jessie Brown."

At Laura Keene's theatre Taylor's play, "Our American Cousin," enters upon its fourth week this evening, and its attraction is by no means diminished. The farce to night is "The New Footman."

At the Broadway theatre Mr. Hackett will commer to night a series of farewell performances, previous to a California trip. He plays on this evening his great part, Falstaff, in "King Henry IV.," supported by Miss Fann Morant, Mr. Prior, and an otherwise strong cast. As the play says, "Good wine needs no bush;" and as Mr Hackett is about the best wine growing in the theatrica vineyard, it is only necessary to acquaint the public with the fact that he is going to play, and they will crowd to

At the Bowery theatre the bill for this evening include two dramas—"Ildaire" and the "Knights of the Mist." Al the favorite actors in the company are included in the casts of these plays.

At the Palace Garden circus "Cinderella." the first of series of equestrian plays to be produced here, will be brought out this evening, and performed during the week as well as on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. The announcements are especially tempting to the juvenile portion of the community, who never tire of the wonderful adventures connected with the Fairy and the little Glass Slipper. For the sterner portion of the there are the usual arena performances, with Melville a

At Barnum's Museum they have added an Indian giant whose height is stated at seven feet and his weight at four hundred pounds. Lakewise are exhibited numerous other curiosities, natural and artificial, and the famous "Theatro of Arts," every afternoon and evening.

At Wood's Minstrels the new pantomime "Scampini" ha been so successful as to keep its place in the bills for another week. Other novelties are announced for to night with an address by E. Horn.

The Bryant Minstrels, at Mechanics' Hall, give one of their best programmes for this week. In addition to the longs and comic scenes, a new burlesque, called "Used Up," is promised.

November to Come.—Mr. Wallack has in rehearsal Too Taylor's last comedy, "Going to the Bad." It was written for the London Olympic. Mr. Hackett is announced to appear at the Broadway, as Sir Pertinax MacSycophant in "The Man of the World." On dit, that Miss Laura Keene a getting up "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in grand menced a season of one month at the Academy of Music on Mondoy, with Mme. Colson in the "Traviata." On Wednesday Mme. de Wilherst made her débût in "Lucia," with Brignoli as Edgardo. Both the prima donns and the tenor are highly praised by the critics. The Bulletin is surprised at the improvement made by Madame de Wilhorst since she sang in concert, and her dramatic singing in "Lucia's" last scene receives high praise. On Friday Colson repeated the "Traviata," in which she made a grand success, and on Saturday "La Sonnambula" was given, with De Wilhorst, Brignoli and Amodio. Parodi will sing the "Trovatore" during this week, and "Martha" (in Italian) will be brought out as soon as Junca recovers from an attack of bronchitis under which he is now laboring.

New From St. Donninge and Hayti by the Way of New York (Oct. 5) correspondence of London Post. 1
There is no little domestic intelligence of the slightest interest to communicate that the present is an excellent opportunity for a slight excarsion northward, and a glance at the events of the last few months in the island of San Lomingo. Your readers are aware that this island is occupied by two independent States—one, the empire of Hayti, extending over 10,000 square miles on the west of the island, and the other the republic of Dominica, with an area of 18,000 square miles on the wast. The Empire of Hayti is prefoundly negro in all its institutions, even to the similative point and ceremonial of its Court; white in Dominica—the ancient Spanish portion of the island—the whites and creedos prepanderate in influence, if not numerically, over the population, amounting in all to some 150,000 souls. Up to 1854 Dominica was subject to Hayti, but in that year the whites effected a separation, and since them have managed to maintain their independence, though subject to frequent inroads on the part of their neighbors. The principal supporter of the revolution was a creele of the name of Pedro Santana, who was made first President, and who distinguished himself by his hatred to the black race. The United States, in their detestation of anything approaching to negro independence, eagerly welcomed the advent of Santana, who was also strougthoned by assurances of Soropean friendship. He was followed in the Presidency by an individual named Kimenes, whom, however, a revoit, headed by Santana, at the castern (seaward) end of the island, to be used of brining him into the cession of the splendid bay of Samana, at the castern (seaward) end of the island, to be used as a coal depot by the United States. Santana was all readiness to make the cession, when the representatives of Great Bretian and Prance very properly interfered, and demanded that the political intrigue should proceed no further. The United States, envey suddenly " last year Sartana again found his way to Dominica

steamer, while Buenaventura Baez, a mulatto, became President.

Last year Sartana again found his way to Dominica, and, after a desoluting strugtle, succeeded in ousting Baes from the Presidency, which office he resigned on the 12th of June, 1858. In July a species of election took place, when Jose Valverde was chose President, while Santana encamped about San Domingo city with his ragamulin troops. The election of Valverde as President, instead of himself, was an unpardonable offence, and he adopted from the first a hostile tone toward the new government. Now comes the important point of the affair.

Since France lost San Domingo, haif a century ago, she has never ceased to look with a longing eye upon the ancient glory of the Antilles. Like Cherbourg, the acquisition of influence over Hayti has been a tradition handed down from one dynasty to another; and the present Emperor, with his far-feaching schemes of empire, has been active, in a quiet way, both at the Court of Faustin and in the republican councils on the other side of the island. The Haytiesa have entirely lost their once bitter hatred of the French, and Gallicism is the order of the day among the imperialists, who have been led, pas d pas, to consider with no great disfavor the possible establishment of a French protectorate. When Valverde the other day became President of Dominica, overtures were made to him by the French representative, who skiffully pointed out the advantages of a joint or consolidated administration for the island, under the "supreme direction" of the French government. What steps were taken by the representative of Great Britain in this matter I have been unable to ascertain. Santana, however, using the projected removal of the capital from San Domingo city to Santago as his pretext, commenced hostilities against Valverde, and compelled him to fly, taking refuge in the neighboring British possessions of Turks Island. On the list uit. Santana marched into Santago with his army of 2,000 men, and of ourse became President of the and adaptability to slave labor, populated also with that race which, as the New York Herlin said not long ago, "it is the mission of our people to reduce to their proper level," or something equivalent to this; and secondly, on account of its proximity to the Spanish island of Puerto Rico, which is embraced in the general designs upon the Spanish possessions, and the West Indies generally, which have become a species of fanaticism with the United States democracy. Santana has scarcely been in power four weeks, and already steps are taken to re-open the former negotiations for the annexation of Samana Bay, and the vigilance of Great Britain and France must be exercised now, as before, to prevent this cession. While, however, the European diplomatists oppose this insidious blow at the independence of Dounhica, England especially is concerned to see that no steps are taken by France in that quarter which would be prejudicial to her interests. There can be no doubt that the Emperor Napoleon is desirous of effecting a permanent lodgment for the French cagles in the locality of their former dominion, and it is for your statesmen to decide whether it would be advantageous to Great Britain, either commercially or politically, to find this great and teeming island a military colony of France, under the special guise of a protectorate. We must remember that in Hayti, if anywhere, is to be worked out the problem of freedom and independence for the negro race, and that the moment the island passes into the possession of a slaveholding or a slavery favoring power, the developement of seef governing and progressive qualities, which is assuredity going on at present, will be immediately checked.

In this instance the very principle which was so ably to the problem of the the the Merceice Leit was the reference to the re-which is assuredly going on at present, will be immediately checked.

In this instance the very principle which was so ably put forth by the Morning Post, with reference to the recent Russian acquisition of Vila Franca, is brought into play. It should be made impossible for any nation through unscruppilous and unpartiotic rulers, to alienate any portion of its territory in this underhand manner; and unless some such maxim or international obligation be established, the clashings of British with French, Russian and American interests must become more and more frequent. But more important even than this point is the almost merican interests must become more and more frequent But more important even than this point is the almost accedible presumption of the United States in advancing the silly impertmence of a weak minded old man, which is dubbed the Mource doctrine, as one of the gravest and most binding of international obligations. Quoth James Monroe, European nations may no longer colonize the American continents; argal, European nations are at once to withdraw, or to be made to withdraw from the line of to withdraw, or on many structure at the total conditions, and the conquering "universal" nation. Never be force would would be conquering "universal" nation. Any of the conditions and before the conditions, and any of the conditions and before the conditions and the co ing any corresponding benefit for his own country. The present disorganized condition of Central America, the popularity of such men as Walker, and the facilities which are so readily accorded to those adventurers who in time of peace carry on private war, are standing evidences of the selfish and discreditable sprit which too often characterises the diplomacy, or rather we should say the polley, of the United States.

It will be recollected that in 1866 the late President sent an agent to the then chief of the Dominican republic for the purpose of obtaining by purchase the cession of the island. It was stated at the time that this port could easily be converted into a second Sebastopel, which would give its possessors the command of the neighboring sense. The pretext alleged by Mr. Pierce was, that he wished to obtain a coal depot for the accommodation of United States men-of-war. The British and the French governments, however, at once interfered, and the contemplated treaty fell to the ground. The proposal has now been renewed; and unless England and France again interfere, the United States, we are afraid, may accomplish their object, and obtain a most important multiary port, which will enable them not only to exercise supreme power in Dominica and Hayti, but to threaten the whole of the English and Spanish West India Islands. The two systems of government which exist in San Domingo may not be entitled to much respect; but at all events we all know that the island is the scene of a most interesting and curious experiment; and that there is to be solved the problem whether the negro race can, for their own benefit, be curvated with political freedom and self-government. The Cabinet at Washington, with its strong sympathies in favor of slavery, is naturally enough anxious to reduce the inhabitante of San Domingo to a state of absolute serftom; but this is an object which, on every ground of humanity and policy, England cannot permit to be accomplished. It is singular, indeed, that a country which possesses t

MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL IN THE CASE OF RICHARD BARRY, THE SCHOOL COMMISSIONER.

Nov. 6 .- At the opening of the Court this morning Mr Hall, counsel for Richard Barry, a School Commissionerwho, it will be remembered, pleaded guilty to assault and battery on a man named Woolf, and was sent to the penitentiary for four months by Recorde Barnard-in an elaborate argument moved for a new trial, on the ground of informatity. The Grand Jury brought in two indictments against Mr. Barry one for assault with intent to rob, and the other for a sin ple assault and battery. Counsel stated that the defendan pleaded guilty to the two indictments, when he only in tended to plead guilty to the charge of assault and bettery Mr. Hall argued that the statute made the first indictmen nell and void, and he moved that the prisoner be allower to retract his plea and go to trial on the second indict neill and void, and he moved that the prisoner be allowed to retract his plea and go to trial on the second indictment.

Mr. Blunt, the District Attorney, in reply said:—The Grand Jury, in presenting indictments, give no directions as to the entering of indictments; they are entered by the clerk, and no precedence is given to one above another. The defendant is entitled to claim from the Court that the prosecuting officer shall make a selection which of the indictments he intends to try. This defendant, after looking over the matter, concluded that he would plead guilty to one indictment and that the other should be discharged, and all this argument seems to me to be entirely misplaced. The sentence passed upon Mr. Barry ought not to be interfered with, for this special reason: Mr. Barry is a person of some note in this community; the eye of the community is upon this case, and it does seem to me it would argue very badly with regard to the character of our criminal jurisprudence if simple technicalities which courts of justice ought not to give weight to should be allowed to save this individual from the punishment that this Court has awarded to him for this conviction, upon a deliberate conviction of guilt. I do hope that the administration of justice in our criminal courts will be so conducted that all these technicalities and pleas growing out of circumstances similar to such as have been put before the Court on this occasion will not be availing for the purpose of prevening the guilty from having the just punishment meed out to them. If the punishment is too severe, our laws have provided that the Executive elemency may be appealed to, and I am satisfied that though the Governor will not carelessly or indiscreetly exercise it, with a due regard to the community and to the criminal. I hope justice will be so administered that an opinion may in no way have countenence given to it that the law is mended to catch those who are not powerful, and has elastic meshes, through which those who are powerful can excea meshes, through which those who are powerful can escape.

Judge Russell—The most important question to be determined is, has the Court power to receive a plea on an indictment absolutely void by law?

The District Attorney said that the clerk entered the plea of guilty on the only living indictment, and that the other one was disposed of by being dismissed from the consideration of the Court.

Mr. Hall stated that one of the reasons why he defended the prisoner was, that he saw there was a predisposition on the part of the public press and of some parties to give to this case and this man a persecuting notoriety which did not belong to it; and in his hundre way he was always very happy to stand up against anything of that kind in behalf of those who were hunted; but whether the prisoner be Cady the pirate, or whether he be a very honest Peckaniff, he was entitled to the rigid rules of law in his case.

The prisoner was brought into court while the assument.

The prisoner was brought into court while the argument was pending. He has been kept in the city prison since the Recorder passed sentence, and will remain there until the City Judge renders his decision, which will be given ext Saturday.

MOTION TO QUASH THE INDICTMENTS AGAINS CHARLES DEVLIN, CHARLES TURNER AND OTHERS. down by the City Judge for hearing an argument of coun sel for the defendants, indicted for alleged conspiracy to defraud the public treasury, on a motion to quash the indictments. The accused parties were in attendance, toin the proceedings.

Counsel for the accused said he moved to quash the indictments against Charles Devlin, Charles Turner, Enoch Dean, James B. Smith and Peter H. Dryor, and based his

dictments against Charles Devlin, Charles Turner, Enoch Dean, James B. Smith and Peter H. Dryor, and based his argument on a number of points of law, which he submitted to his Honor.

Counsel for the prosecution replied by observing that if such rhetorical appeals be recognized by the Court as had just been made by the counsel for the detendants—which would have been in better tasts if made before a jury—the sconer the sanctuaries of justice were closed the better. If such appeals were constantly made upon every trivial motion that might be made in relation to the finding of indictments, or to the pleading in a criminal case, the sconer the sanctuaries of justice were closed the better: because it seemed that no one was to be protected against the vices of those who thought proper to commit them. Murder must walk abroad at noonday; violence must be perpetrated by every one; every man must be at liberty to do just as he pleases. For if a Grand Jury should think proper to indict for an offence they were denounced, as they had been by the counsel, when they appear to defend their clients in violation of every principle of right, and according to their view it should be the Grand Jury that should take the place of the prisoner at the bar, and he should emphatically carry out the doctrine that the innocent should always suffer for the guilty. When his Honor should reach the age of three score years and ten, he would look back to the administration of criminal justice with pleasure, provided he walked the strict line of duty, departing neither to the right nor to the left, administering the law without fear or favor, or influenced by passion.

Counsel maintained that if the defendants were innocent of the offence they would contri a trial rather than avoid it, and if they were innocent of the charges a reinstancent of their good state in society was to follow their acquittal rather than an escape arising out of a technicality. Comesel said he would treat the argument of counsel for the defendants as a denurrer to the ary to determine.

Counsel for the defendants replied, and the Judge re
